

Recycle Your Crayons

According to Crayolacrayon.com, about three billion crayons are produced yearly, only to end up in landfills. Found Produce Partners, located in Rochester, Mich., partner with residents, schools and restaurants to keep broken and used crayons petroleum-based crayons from going to landfills. Instead, they get a second life as new crayons. To learn more about donating crayons for this effort, contact Found Produce at found.produce@yahoo.com, or find them on Facebook to arrange a pick-up or drop-off.

TerraCycle Gives Kids Cash for Trash

Did you know there is an alternative use for all those drink pouches, chip bags, or plastic wrappers collected each day at your child's school? TerraCycle will take those items and create new products such as coolers, recycling bins, and even fences, with them! The best part? Getting paid for keeping the waste out of landfills. For more information on how to participate in a collection program, visit <http://www.terracycle.net>.